It is undendriedly true that the enomy are using the Weldon read nearly up to Resum's Station, whence they send supplies and freight by wagons to Petersburg. This, however, is hazardous boalness, and it is believed they do not do much of it. There are request that they are building a road from, near Resum's Station across some point on the Temperson and Lynchburg Road. We are likely to know something about the matter in a short time. They are fortifying in front of our position, on the Weldon Road, and cridently mean stubbornly to reads any further attempt to move by the left flack.

Union Mass Meeting at Joneshoro.

(Correspondence Chiesgo Tribune.)

Saturday, September 3, was a most glorious day for Jonesboro one their will be held by costerity as a smered day. In answer to a privious call the "mud-sille" of Jonesboro one vicinity assembled at the Court Honde at 1 o'clock to listen to Units speeches. Captain Wafers, of Tenn. was called to the stand and delivered a short but miss interesting speech. He pointed out clearly the duty of the partiot and the doom of the tradior.

Next that old patriot, Col. John Dongherity, took the stand. At this some of the next hitter Copperheads left the house, and suiz I had heard his indeerlibally elequent, patriot.

He began by saying he couldn't describe the convertion, and then fried to do it. He said that all the railroads centering in Chicago had been engaged a week before-hand to bring in the designate, but their energies were unequal to task. Such an angust as armbinge had never met before in any city of the Union, and though, at tastes, catemoriese could be traced, [enpressed appliance] yet all were around a by one carnets seatiment—"The Preservation of the Union." All felt too, that the war had hilberto been carried on by a party who rever understood the principles of government, and that nos something due besides the conquest of the Southern States must be resorted to. After two days deliberation, a platform had been adopted, the two first zesolutions of which expressed the profit of the party, the nominee had seen declared on the truit of the party, the nominee had been declared on the party, the nominee had been declared on the perty, the nominee had been declared on beyond, and "the stone which the bullers at Washington has researed, had become the bead of the corner." There are times when the ty, took the stand. At this some of the mest bitter Copperbonds left the house, and still I had heard his indescribably eloquent, patriotic, Chilstain-like speech, I did not weader at their leaving, for surely if any man one carth has no ser, it costs out dwile! it is Colonel Dougherty. I shall make no effort to convey to nour imagination even a faint lidea of his address. No pen can picture to the imagination that notice patriot's speech of Seturity last; it can be fully speech and only by these who shall be and for themselves. The loss may scotist ook Dougherty, but patriots will love and house him in all time to come.

serves. To loss may scoff at Col. Dougherty but pakriots will love and honor him fa all tise to come.

Next came the silver-headed sage, patriot, and Christian, Hon. James A. Butler, of Arkaness, who has been surrounded by rebel cut-throats for the last three years, and consequently is thoroughly acqual tited. With all their belifth designs. He made a most telling speech, compseled all to stand first by their birth-right, the bequest of our fathers, the Union and freedom of country.

At the close of Mr. Butler's address, three cheers were proposed for the last speaker, and were given; three for President Lincoln, three for fean. Ogleshy, three for the brave solders of the Linion, three times to the Union and all together; and they were solders of the Union and all together; and they were serven, and size it rusting, patriotic cheers never before rent the heaves in subtis locality. Joneshoro is redeemed. The second of devia."

Traitors may how, but the londer they Traitors may how, but the londer they Arkanses, who has been surrounded by reddened to cut-throats for the last three years, and consequently is thoroughly acquait ted, with all their heilibh designs. He made a most telling speech, connected all to stand firm by their birth-right, the bequest of our fathers, the Union and freedom of country.

At the close of Mc. Butler's address, three closes were proposed for the last speaker, and were given; three for President Lincoln, three for tean tylesby, three for the branch for the Union and all together; and, they were before reat the heavens income the Union and each reusing, patriotic cheers given, and such reusing, patriotic cheers never before reat the heavens includesply some the union is reddened. The seeds of virtues and pair tottem are sown, tondesply some to be rooted out by "sevine possessed of devil."

Traitors may howl, but the louder they how it the more surely will they point the diagree of justice at their black heaven. Only one little occurrence took place to mar the beauty and giory of the day. A soldier of the Union and one of Add. Daries soldiers of its greed, and a sight took place, in which Jrff's soldier for their several homes with their patriotic mach retried.

At a late hour the crowd dispersed, and set out for their several homes with their patriotic mach retried.

One er two things he said I may perhaps have space council left to note. Speaning of the Criticago nominations, he said that during the past three days he had that during the past three days he had they determine the said and classes of the people, and during that time he had not leard a single man straing in favor of the Democratic compless. MATE AN DEQUAL SCHOOL AT THE MOSTAL We have not the slightest doubt that ther is a marinal waderstanding belows the Stypocour the Woods, Fallansiphon and the robed. This understanding is shown in the seconion platform adapted by the Obscupe Consention, and is the nomination of Mr. Pandiston, of Obscu-wit is a practical seasonionist—for Vice President We have now driven the rebeds completely to the wall. General Great has the best of these at Richmond, and General Great has best of the at Richmond, and General Great man would be talking about "an immediate constitutes." We are in two of an armistic like that between Fruesia and Demark where both sides hold their ground and arready to begin the conflict at any moment but there is a v. at deal of difference between such an armistic and the "immediate cross unch an armistic and the "immediate cross one has manistic and the "immediate cross one has a misside and the "immediate cross by size for, and the call of the Escentise Contonities. This is equivalent to the organization of a recolutionary body. Our merchants and capitalists so consider it; for they are closing up business, shipping their goods back to Europe, turning their goods back to Europe, turning their property across the water, and in every way preparing to leave the country as soon as the revolution begins. These movements are not to be lightly considered. They mean mischnet, and show that trouble is brewing. Gen. McClellac can avert that trouble and restore public confidence if he have the pluck and squaeth to ignore the Chicago platform and come out boildy as a Jackson Democration than platform of the plus of the will have a fair chance of clection, because he will not be bound to a cowardly policy if he be elected. But what could Washington himself do if he were piedged to negoliate for "an immediate cascation of hostitues?" The Chicago platform will ecourage the robels to held out useful election, and, as things stand at present, the Peace Copperheads have promised them one of two things: either the re-election of Lincoin and a Northern insurrection—in which case the rebels will have the upperhand of us; or, in the event of McClellau's election, "an immediate cessation of host litts," in which case the rebels will have the upperhand of us; or, in the event of McClellau's election, "an immediate cessation of host litts," in which case the rebels will have the upperhand of us; or, in the event of McClellau's election, "an immediate cessation of host litts," in which case the rebels will have everthing their own way.
